What is your vision of the wild? Whether it's bird watching in your local park or backpacking through remote forest, wildness is where you find it.

The Visions of the Wild festival marks the 50th anniversary of The Wilderness Act and will feature local artwork depicting the wildness of nature. There will be author talks, a film series, art showings, panel discussions and field trips highlighting both wilderness and local wildlands. The festival will take place in Vallejo, a city known for its cultural and natural diversity and vibrant arts community. With the help of many public and private partners, the festival will spotlight the anniversary of the historic legislation that preserves and protects wilderness areas across the American landscape.

The Visions of the Wild festival celebrates these magnificent public lands and invites you to find wildness wherever you live.
